Still trying my best to herd the cats, as it were. Doug is usually pretty quick to turn things around, so once Bo gets his stuff done, Doug shouldn't take too long. However, I'll be staying on top of Bo and Dan today, to make sure we get their parts.

Just letting you know where things are at.

Hi Bo,

I know you were out in the field last week. So I'm just checking as to the status of things, as I know EPA is anxious to get this checklist finalized and sent out. I think the plan is for Doug to take the checklist after you.

Dan – did you have any comments on the checklist? If so, maybe you can send those in? This way, it's one less set of comments to have to integrate into the checklist after Bo/Doug do their thing. Just a thought.

MANY thanks to you all for the help on this!

I'll be first this time. My edits are in red text. (Eleanor, I took out your questions).

Hello, All

Attached is the latest (and hopefully greatest!) version of the checklist. Items where I had questions, or where we still needed to come to a consensus, are highlighted in neon yellow. I've sometimes added specific questions, and addressed them to particular people I tried to do that in bold-faced red, within a neon yellow box.

- Karla: I have three (I think) questions specifically for you, regarding the MWs to be installed before EBR ... your name is specifically on the questions
- Bo and Doug: Can you please take another look at the modeling and mapping sections (pre, during, and post-EBR).
- Dan: Anything else in the geochemistry or microbial sections (pre, during, and post EBR)?

Please make it very clear where you've made changes (highlight the cell or text), for easier spotting during the next (and hopefully last) round of reviewing. This worked well last time, so thanks!

We talked about how it's easier if one of you does your editing, and then let the next person do theirs (just like last time) So that all edits are on one worksheet and we don't have multiple versions flying around. It would be great if this could happen again – it was very easy to keep track of things (thank you!!). Whoever is ready can go first, then the next person, etc. Doug needs Bo to work on some things first, so those two are likely to be towards the end, I would think.

I think that's it..... MANY thanks!

PS: FYI only: I'll have occasional cell/email access tomorrow (Thursday) but absolutely none on Friday.
